

DAILY GAZETTE

J. H. KOOCLEK, Editor.

PATCHWORK JOURNALISM.

The mission of a newspaper is to enlighten the public by giving news of the day or week, not only of the section in which it may be regarded as having a field, but also general news. It is no discredit to an editor that he uses his shears freely and the readers are oftentimes the more highly edified by a clipping than they would be by an original effusion. The GAZETTE has been accused of doing this sort of thing by wholesale, by the editor of a little sheet in Socorro, who furthermore alleges that these items are stale. We do not intend to make this a personal journal but take this occasion to say that he lies. Within the last two months and a half we have retailed stale stuff only once, and in common with quite a number of territorial papers come in for a share of the New Mexican's ridicule for publishing a story about Victorio. Will the Socorro Sun that doesn't shine for its editor, please endeavor to find a key to the item of the GAZETTE's that he is at sea on, by referring to the New York papers of three weeks ago.

This editor, who has hung out his shingle as a news expert, feels called upon to clip from a few of the territorial papers, and distort items to the injury of the places where these journals are published. The Albuquerque Journal of the 20th inst., made complaint as follows: "The Socorro Sun never let an opportunity slip to get in a fling at the business men of Albuquerque." In our issue of Tuesday, we took occasion to reproduce some of the dirty drives of the Socorro paper against Las Vegas which were built up on items published in the papers of this city. For instance, we have had considerable to say of the operations of "the Kid's" band, but we have never said it has rendered the Las Vegas route to the White Oaks dangerous, neither do we remember to have seen anything in the Optic to lead anyone to believe that life was more endangered by traveling to the White Oaks from Vegas, than it would be by going by way of Socorro. But it takes very little to convince one that it was out of general cussedness that items that have appeared in our city papers were distorted. The shears and condenser of the Sun are certainly very blunt, if they are not, as we believe they are wholly unfit for reliable work.

Are the business men of Las Vegas inclined to help support a paper that is guilty of running down our city as the Sun is endeavoring to do? The next time Conklin, the editor, comes to Las Vegas to solicit patronage for his paper, he should be given to understand that no man who goes so far out of his way as to libel the town should be tolerated.

The last issue of the Sun is in some departments naught but a piece of patch work and the weaving in is horribly done.

The fresh editor of the Sun is reminded that "the new editor of the GAZETTE" don't care a continental what he may think or say of his work, but when he takes anything from this journal for his patchwork quilt, he will please pay a little attention to truth. This is a new paper, and we cannot afford to take up any more space in what may seem to be a personal affair. If Conklin desires to take satisfaction out of "the new editor," he can find him at this office, or we will be accommodating and meet him at some place convenient to both when he can get all the satisfaction he wants. Once for all let us alone or fight squarely.

It must be confessed that the building of a stable for twenty horses on the top of a private mansion, access to which is obtained by means of a lift, is calculated to awaken a feeling of astonishment even in these days of marvels. Yet this is the case on a house just erected in Belgrave Square, London, by Mr. Sassoon. Ground is very valuable in that fashionable part of London, and by relegating the horses to the top of the house two birds are killed with one stone, for space is saved and the smell of the stable avoided. The horses do not seem by any means to object to the mode of ascent; possibly they are unconscious of it on account of the closed shutters of the lift.

At Linares, Spain, lately, three miners were sinking a shaft, and after charging the bore holes with dynamite, two climbed to the gallery above while the third remained to light the fuse attached to the charges. Having done so he signaled to his comrades, and was being hoisted up, when on nearing the top he lost his hold, and fell the distance of fifty feet to the bottom, where he lay stunned and disabled, close to the lighted fuses. One of his comrades instantly put his knife between his teeth, and, descending by a chair ladder, severed the fuses as they were about igniting.
